Opening Reception: February 9th, 5 - 7pm

Gallery Talk: February 9th, 5:30 - 6:30pm

A collection of work centered around sexual violence and trauma.

The Frankie G. Weems Gallery at Meredith College features the work of Megumi Naganoma. Born and raised in South Florida, Megumi is an interdisciplinary artist. Her experiences and research inspire her work focused on bringing awareness to sexual violence and Post Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD).

Megumi dominantly works in fabric, drawing, and video. Her practice responds to current events, stigmas, and societal norms revolving around rape culture. Using these methods, she advocates for rape survivors while keeping various audiences in mind by starting conversations that continue to shed light on something that is often still seen as taboo.
