The Frankie G. Weems Gallery features individual artists who represent current and recent faculty and staff members at Meredith College. Spanning various media, the Meredith College Art Department Faculty & Staff Exhibition encapsulates the talents of this specific community of artists who not only teach Meredith students but also actively expand their research through their artistic practice.

The mission of the Meredith College Art Department is to foster individual growth by providing an intellectually challenging environment that engages students in critical thinking through the creative process of visual problem-solving. The department offers majors in art education, graphic design, and studio art based on a core curriculum of shared studio art and art history experiences. In addition, it offers minors in art history, arts management, graphic design, photography, and studio art, as well as preparation for teacher licensure in K-12 visual art.
